The opportunities 3chillies has offered have been both rare and rewarding. They have introduced me to the web development industry and helped me develop my skills to become a professional web developer. The company has allowed me to follow a path I want to take in my career and learn the skills in the fields that interest me. Just like every graduate, there are gaps of developer knowledge which their University brushes over and they want to learn about further. 3chillies has allowed me to revisit such areas and become an experienced developer with the latest know-how. They have provided me with the tools, training and most importantly the time to hone these skills and become confident in assisting others.

It's not also about the developer side of the career, 3chillies lets you work with others outside the company and develop your communication and managerial skills. The exposure and inclusion to such large scale customers and projects has given me amazing experiences and allowed me take on projects and responsibility that I will reflect upon for the rest of my career.

The team are a great bunch of people and they're all about tackling a solution together, everyone is an integral part of the project and we build solutions with the utmost pride. Working at 3chillies is the real reward after graduation.
